Product Maintenance

General Maintenance:
Atmospheric deposits of dust and grime are the major causes of premature deterioration of surface coatings because of the wide variety of chemical pollutants in the atmosphere. When such chemicals become damp, they often initiate local attack, generally in the form of pitting on the surface finish. Dampness can rarely be prevented but dust and grime can usually be removed by regular attention such as dusting with a dry cloth or by washing neglected surfaces with clean or soapy water. Little and often should be the rule, avoiding the use of even the mildest abrasive. The application of wax or silicone polishes can be beneficial because of the barrier layer created between surface finish and atmospheric deposits.

Locks and Latches:
The correct operation of a lock or latch, assuming correct fitting, is often affected by movement of the door or frame occurring, perhaps, due to distortion influenced by climatic conditions or wear on hinges or pivots inducing door drop. The usual effect from these conditions is inability of the latch and dead bolts to easily engage the striking plate or keep, requiring an adjustment to their position on the frame, or an adjustment to the lip of the striking plate to provide a more favourable striking angle. Freedom of operation of the latch action in conjunction with the striking plate or keep is particularly important when the door is fitted with a closing device and also, of course, on fire resisting doors. It is also important that the holes in the frame behind striking plates are deep enough and free from foreign matter, to ensure unrestricted movement of the bolt or bolts.

Lubrication, when required in the context of free latching of a door, need only be applied to the sides and striking face of a latch bolt. Pin tumbler and disc tumbler cylinders should be lubricated with a

PTFE lubricant.

Door Closing Devices:
There is little routine maintenance to be carried out on door closing devices, lubrication generally being limited to the application of a little light oil on visible joints, such as those on the arms of overhead patterns. The closer should be examined periodically to ensure that the door is closing correctly and that the appropriate valve adjustments have been made for the closing and latching speed of the door.

Exit Hardware:
Regular inspection and maintenance is necessary in the interests of public safety. Attention must be given to opening and closing with adjustments as necessary to compensate for any door or frame movement. Floor sockets should be cleaned out to prevent foreign matter impeding bolt movement. Lubrication will be limited to the application of a little light machine oil to the pivots of the top tripper mechanism of panic bolts, and to the head of panic latches.

Pull Handles & Furniture:
Pull handles and lever knob furniture should be checked periodically for secure fixing. Problems occur where wood screws are incorrectly installed and where the material to which the products are fixed is unsuitable.

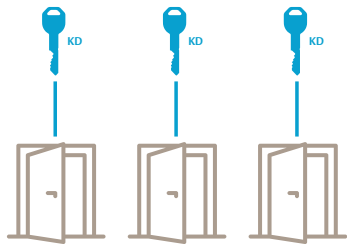

It is also important to check that knob and lever furniture fully withdraws the latch bolt, again for safety.

Coastal Maintenance:
Stainless Steel furniture in coastal regions should be regularly dusted. Occasionally wash with warm soapy water, dry and polish.

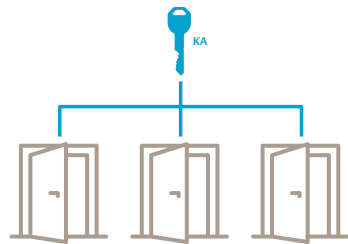

Master Keying

Cylinder products can be supplied in various types of key control systems, ranging from the normal individually keyed product, which is supplied as standard, to complicated Grand Master Key Suites.

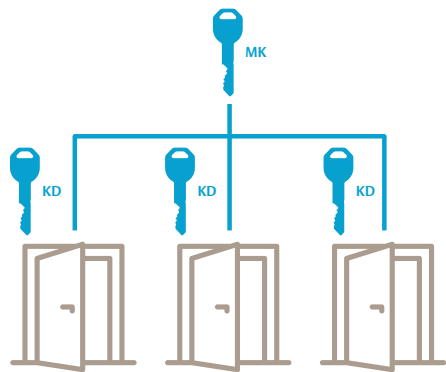

The diagrams below detail how the various keying systems operate. When considering a master keying system for a building, it is important to maintain a balance between the level of security needed and the accessibility. Keyed to Differ (KD) refers to a lock which is individually keyed.

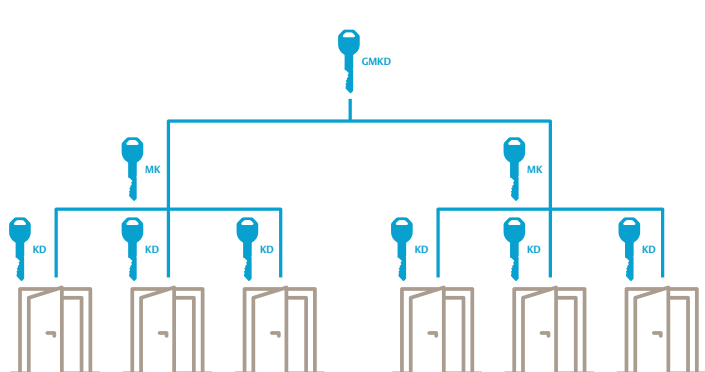

Keyed to Differ (KD) refers to a lock which is individually keyed. UNION locks are supplied to differ as standard, unless otherwise stated. This is sometimes referred to as “standard differ”.

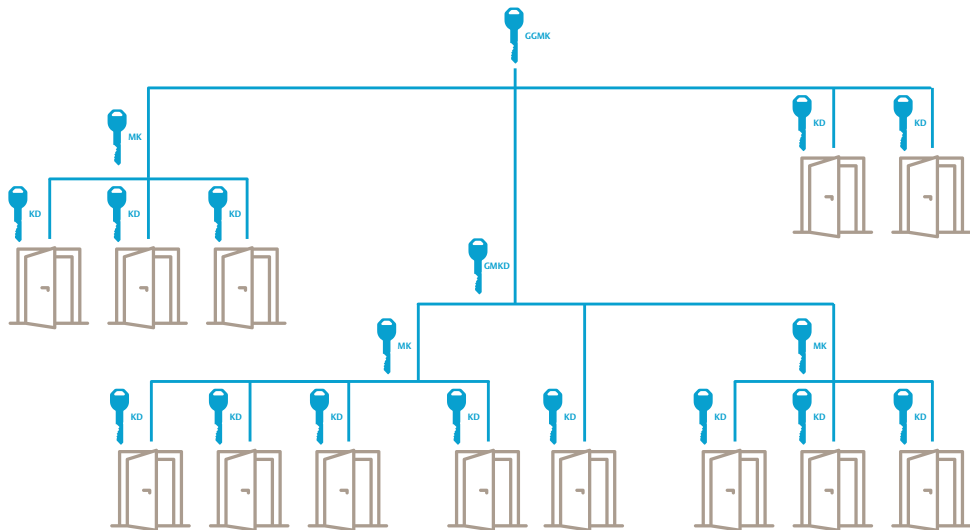

Keyed Alike (KA) refers to the number of locks each operated by the same key. This is also referred to as alike change, or keyed to pass.

Master Keyed (MKD) is the simplest form of Master Keying. Each individual lock is operated by its own unique key and in addition, a control key (master key) operates all the locks in the suite.

Grand Master Keyed (GMKD) is the control key which operates a particular number of locks which are grouped into two or more sets of suites, known as sub-suites. The individual keys which will operate the individual locks - known as change keys, servant keys or differ keys.

Complex Master Key System (GGMK) is a complex system where individual keys or master keys belonging to different groups of cylinders, that can open one or more cylinders belonging to other groups.

The ASSA ABLOY black range of products are all electroplated, offering several advantages over powder coating. Electroplating provides superior corrosion resistance, enhanced durability against wear and abrasion. Additionally, it allows for a more consistent coating, especially on complex shapes. This method results in a more robust and long-lasting coating, ensuring the products maintain their quality and appearance over time.

Door Closers

Trusted, innovative solutions for any building

Door closer standards which are critical for compliance and building safety

In many countries, fire, smoke, and escape doors must be equipped with certified door closers by law. The key standards are EN 1154, EN 1155, and EN 1158, which cover performance requirements for different closing mechanisms. ASSA ABLOY offers fully approved door closers that meet all these standards, including fire and smoke protection.

EN 1154

A mandatory CE marking standard for controlled door closing devices used on swing doors. It defines testing and classification for door closers that provide controlled closing from user-applied energy, including fire and smoke doors.

EN 1155

Applies to electromechanical or electromagnetic hold-open devices, including closers with integrated hold-open functions. These allow doors to stay open for convenience but must close automatically during power loss. Products under this category are typically tested to both EN 1154 and EN 1155 standards.

EN 1158

Covers devices that control the closing of rebated double doors, including standalone and integrated coordination mechanisms. Annex A applies to coordinators used on fire or smoke protection doors.

EN 1634-1

Specifies fire resistance testing for doors and their components, ensuring the door closer is suitable for fire doors.

CEN/TR 15894

A technical report promoting safer, more user-friendly door designs—especially for children, the elderly, and people with disabilities. It recommends that door closers reduce opening force by 40% once the door reaches a 60° opening angle.

How to read the CE classification coding

Rigorous testing in line with EN 1154 produces a detailed certification code. This coding makes it easier to compare the performance of different models. It covers power size, fire behaviour, durability, corrosion resistance and more. Certifications and CE classification codes are clearly marked on both technical datasheets and on products themselves.

Door Closer product label

- 1) CE/UKCA mark
- 2) Number of notified certification body
- 3) EN standard, number and issue date

Choosing Your Henderson Gear In 10 Easy Steps
1. Determine Application Wardrobe, Cupboard, Cabinet, or Room Divider. 2. Choose Door Type Sliding Doors (single) or Folding Doors (paired). 3. Select Fixing Method Face Fixed (onto wall side) or Soffit Fixed (into lintel/cavity). See drawing for details. 4. Measure Opening Width & Track Length Face Fixed = opening width × 2 (for parking space). Soffit Fixed = opening width. Cavity Sliding = opening width × 2. 5. Choose Doors & Note Material Measure each door's width and thickness. Face Fixed: total door width slightly wider than opening (avoid gaps). Soffit Fixed: total door width equals opening width (proper closing). 6. Identify Door Quantity & Weight Check weight per door. 7. Select Correct Henderson Residential Gear & Kit Use table with info from steps 1–6. 8. Install Doors
Additional Notes Sliding doors: Face Fixed (single track) = full opening access, needs wall space (A,B). Soffit Fixed (double track) = doors bypass, partial opening (C). Soffit Fixed (single track) = cavity install (D). Folding doors: Usually Soffit Fixed where no wall space (E). Pelrets: Fit pelmet length of track for neat finish. If door weight exceeds Residential Gear, use Henderson Commercial or Industrial gear at www.pchenderson.com.
